Aim:

To provide the details of architectural design,framework and implementation of the Road Rescue.

Team Members:

S No	Register No	Name	Role
1	RA2111003010099	S RAHUL	Team Leader
2	RA2111003010071	CHIRAG THAKUR	Team Member

Architectural Design:

The Road Rescue can be designed using a layered architecture that consists of three main layers:

- Presentation Layer: This layer is responsible for handling user interactions and displaying the user interface to the end-user. It includes the user interface, such as the invoice and bill generation forms, which are developed using a client-side scripting language like JavaScript, HTML, and CSS.
- Application Layer: This layer manages the application logic and business rules. It includes the modules responsible for processing the data, such as product and customer information, generating invoices, and calculating GST. This layer can be implemented using a server-side programming language such as Java, Python, or PHP.
- Data Layer: This layer is responsible for storing the data used by the application. It includes the database management system that stores the product and customer information, as well as the invoices generated by the system. This layer can be implemented using a relational database management system such as MySQL, Oracle, or PostgreSQL.

Framework:

- The Road Rescue can be developed using a web application framework, such as Django or Ruby on Rails.
- The chosen framework will provide pre-built modules and libraries that can be used to simplify the development process.
- The framework will also provide security features, such as input validation, to prevent errors and data loss.

Implementation:

The implementation process for the Road Rescue involves the following steps:

- Design the user interface and application logic using wireframes and flowcharts.
- Choose a web application framework and set up the development environment.
- Implement the presentation layer using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript.
- Develop the application layer using the chosen server-side programming language and web application framework.
- Implement the data layer using a database management system.

- Integrate the different layers of the system, test the application, and debug errors. Deploy the application on a server or a cloud platform, such as Amazon Web Services (AWS) or Microsoft Azure.

It is important to note that the implementation process will vary depending on the chosen framework, programming language, and database management system. Additionally, it is essential to follow software engineering best practices, such as version control and testing, to ensure the quality of the system and the reliability of the results.
